

PRESS RELEASE

Saxon provides Environmental Support for Printers

On the 5th August 2010 Saxon Recycling Ltd had its first Spillage Control & Duty of Care Training and Open Day

Mick Adams, Saxon's MD said

"The day offered the opportunity for a number of Saxon's customers to take part in a thorough spillage control training session and to witness the workings of our transfer station. The course was very well received by those who attended"

Saxon Recycling anticipates this to be the first of many such days

Cambridgeshire based Saxon Recycling Ltd is one of the most respected Hazardous Waste contractors in the UK specializing in providing a first class economical service to the Print and Photographic Industries. With over 1000 customers we are dedicated to maximizing the amount of customers' materials that are recycled, which is already over 90%, and have pledged to continue to reduce the remaining element that goes to landfill over the next 2 years.
